Pioneer Psychiatrist Came Alone To U.S. From Austria At 13 And Worked Way

Dr. Abraham Arden Brill, seventy-three, pioneer psychiatrist and a leading exponent of the late Dr. Sigmund Freud's principles of psycho-analysis, died of a heart ailment at Mt. Sinai Hospital in New York, after a few days' illness.

Freud's theories of the role of the subconscious in everyday life, said to have influenced the thought and literature of modern times more than any other contemporary, first met with indifference or violent opposition. Many new phrases, now become household words, such as "libido" and "Oedipus Complex," were first introduced into the American language by Dr. Brill.

Dr. Brill was clinical professor of psychiatry at the New York University College of Medicine, lecturer on psycho-analysis at the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University and consultant to the psychiatric departments of Bellevue Hospital, the Veterans' Administration Hospital, at 130 Kingsbridge Road, the Bronx, and Manhattan State Hospital on Wards Island. He also saw patients daily at his office at 88 Central Park West. He lived at 15 West Seventieth Street.

A tireless practitioner and publicist of psycho-analysis, Dr. Brill helped introduce the Freudian doctrine into the United States in the early 1900's. He was the first American translator of many of Dr. Freud's works and outlined psycho-analysis techniques in lectures and press interviews.

When psycho-analysis was in process of [illegible] not advocate that man has to live primitively, obeying his primitive instincts. It urges that man understand his primitive impulses so that they may be deflected to higher aims."

Dr. Brill was born in Kanczuga, Austria. In 1887, at thirteen, he came to the United States alone. He worked his way through New York University, receiving his degree in 1901, and through the College of Physicians and graduated in 1903. After serving as assistant physician at the New York State Hospital in Islip, N. Y., for four years, he went to Europe to

Dr. Brill was widely censured in 1931 when, in assessing Lincoln's brand of wit, he called him a "schizoidmaniac who suffered attacks of mental disorder." An alienist at many trials, including that of the late Joseph W. Harriman, financier who was convicted of bank fraud in 1924, Dr. Brill vigorously advocated the establishment of psychiatric clinics or commissions to determine the sanity of defendants.

Girl Wins $2,400 Grand Science Prize

Barbara Wolff, seventeen-year-old student at Forest Hills High School, Queens, New York, winner of one of two $2,400 grand science scholarships offered annually by the Westinghouse Educational Foundation, returned home from Washington, where the announcement had been made at a dinner.

Accepting modestly the congratulations of her family and schoolmates, Barbara went to school as usual, though tired from a five-day sightseeing tour in Washington in which the forty finalists of the Westinghouse contest partici[illegible]

[illegible] Forest Hills Avenue, Flushing, Barbara described her prize-winning experiments in controlling non-hereditary changes in body shape and color of fruit flies, a project in phenocopies, suggested by Dr. Paul F. Brandwein, chairman of the science department of the Forest Hills High School.

Barbara's father, a biologist, is principal of the William Cullen Bryant High School, Long Island City, Queens. Her mother, the former Charlotte Ornstein, was for eleven years secretary to the city editor of the New York Herald Tribune. She is now editor of "Child Study Magazine." Mr. and Mrs. Wolff have one other child, Robert, fourteen, who is specializing in anthropology.

Histadrut Head Is Bitter On "Irgun"

Palestine Arabs are playing a minor part in opposing the partition of Palestine, Pinhas Lubianiker, a director of Histadruth, the Palestine Labor Federation, asserted in New York.

Mr. Lubianiker, who arrived from Tel Aviv last week, said in a press conference at the Hotel Commodore, that Arabs from outside the country were carrying on the war against the Jews, while the Arabs of Palestine remained "in a passive state." Frequently Palestinian Arabs warned Jewish communities of forthcoming attacks by marauders, he said.

Mr. Lubianiker bitterly denounced the two Jewish terrorist organizations, the Stern Group and the Irgun Zvai Leumi.

"The Stern Group is one of the main curses of our community," he said. "We can explain their use of degenerate methods psychologically, but politically and morally there is no excuse. We are fighting for a moral approach and our appeal is a moral appeal. We are fighting British policy, not against the British people or against British individuals who happen to be in Palestine."

Mr. Lubianiker was critical of British disclaimers of responsibility for the Ben Yehuda Street explosion in Jerusalem on February 22 which killed fifty-four Jews.

"The British have denied that any of their soldiers did it," he said. "No one has said the British Army was responsible for the outrage. But it was the work of British people. The government doesn't say a word about British police being responsible, or about persons who have left the British police or army being responsible."

A new element was introduced into the Palestine controversy with the formation in Washington of the Committee for Justice and Peace in the Holy Land. The committee opposes enforcement of the proposed United Nations partition of Palestine into Arab and Jewish states for a reconsideration by the U. N. General Assembly of its partition plan, says the New York Herald Tribune.

An immediate appeal by the U. N. Security Council to both Arabs and Jews to "cease fire" in the Palestine fighting is suggested by the committee. The "cease-fire" agreement would prevail pending reconsideration of the case by the General Assembly and reference of the controversy to the International Court of Justice.

Miss Virginia C. Gildersleeve, dean-emeritus of Barnard College, was elected chairman of the organization meeting. Henry Sloane Coffin, president-emeritus of the Union Theological Seminary, New York, was named vice-chairman. Kermit Roosevelt, of Washington, a grandson of Theodore Roosevelt, was named executive director.

Book By Blind Man Codifies Braille

A Braille manual which clarifies and codifies the language of the blind and is designed to speed up transcriptions of standard English books was published by the New York Guild for the Jewish Blind, 1880 Broadway.

The Guild, which operates on a non-sectarian basis, said it would send copies of the sixty-six-page guide free to any Braille transcriber who wanted one. Among the organizations which have already received copies of the book are the New York chapter of the American Red Cross, the Board of Education, the Lighthouse and the American Foundation for the Blind.

The manual, entitled "Transcribers' Guide to Standard English Braille," is the work of Bernard M. Krebs, blind librarian of the New York Guild for the Jewish Blind.

Mr. Krebs, a slightly built, shy man who looks younger than his thirty-seven years, was guest of honor at a tea given by the Guild. He said he had been working on his book for two years and thinking about it for ten.

Says Jewish Boats To Transport Arms

Arms and ammunition purchased in European countries by the Jewish Agency for Palestine are being concentrated in Mediterranean ports "on a large scale" ready to be shipped to Palestine for arrival on May 16, the day after the end of the British mandate administration, an Agency spokesman disclosed at Jerusalem.

Much of the equipment, he said, would be dispatched in the Jewish Agency's own ships. Under one guise or another, he added, the Agency owns more than fifty ships of various kinds.

Asked whether the arms could be bought, the spokesman maintained that they could be bought "almost anywhere," sometimes direct from the manufacturers, if one had the money to pay.

Silver Pleads For Jewish Militia

Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, chief Zionist spokesman before the United Nations, contended that the Jewish community in Palestine would be threatened with annihilation if the partition plan failed. In that event, the Jews of the Holy Land would have to act in the interests of self-preservation, he said.

Speaking before the Security Council, Dr. Silver said that the Zionists regarded the partition recommendation as binding and relied on the United Nations to carry out the General Assembly's decision but were determined to defend themselves against armed bands "bent on war."

The chairman of the United States section of the Jewish Agency for Palestine then went on to say:

"We fully respect the authority of the United Nations, but if it is unable to carry out its own decisions and, as a consequence, the Jewish community of Palestine is confronted with the threat of annihilation, it will be compelled by the considerations of sheer survival, not to speak of the preservation of its right, to take all necessary measures which the situation will call for."

Dr. Silver spoke to the Council before the voting on the Belgian and United States resolutions. He

Set Young Ones In Centre Of Village

All Jewish settlements in Palestine are being fortified, David Hacohen, engineer and managing director of Solel Boneh, leading construction cooperative there reported in New York, at headquarters of the United Jewish Appeal, 165 West Forty-sixth Street, for which he plans a two-month speaking tour. He was welcomed by Henry Morgenthau Jr., general chairman of its $250,000,000 fund-raising campaign.

The visitor said Jewish settlement fortifications were "not a Maginot line," but had parapets and pillboxes. He declared women were trained to handle firearms and to fight on an equal basis with men.

"Not a single child has been evacuated from a settlement," Mr. Hacohen emphasized.

He said placement of children's houses in the center of collective villages was "undoubtedly a main factor which makes our people fight so heroically."

The engineer asserted that Jews in Palestine had an intelligence service patterned on British lines and operating in Arab states. He said it knew of British dealings with Arabs in selling arms, "which the British openly admit."

Mr. Hacohen blamed Great Britain for abandoning Arab territory in Palestine, thus leaving Jews unguarded. He contended that the gate in Jerusalem could be protected by the British with 100 men and six armed cars.

The visitor declared that Britons and Arabs wanted to spread chaos "to improve the United Nations and overturn its decision on partition." While condemning their alleged policy, he said he found Arabs in Palestine a "sympathetic, peaceful people" and British soldiers there "good boys." Mr. Hacohen denounced Jewish terrorists of the Stern and Irgun groups as "crimi[illegible]

Haganah Claims Right To Draft U.S. Citizens In Palestine

The Haganah, the Zionist militia, claims the right to mobilize even United States citizens if they are of military age and reside in Palestine, a spokesman of the Jewish Agency for Palestine declared in Jerusalem, reports the New York Times.

Jews holding United States passports complained recently that they had been threatened with violence if they attempted to return to the United States. When 200 Jewish Americans were about to sail for the United States in the Russian ship Rossiya from Haifa at the end of February, a party of Haganah men invaded the pier and threw some of the passports into the harbor before being removed by British marines.

The Jewish Agency spokesman denied that any formal protest had been received from the United States consulate. However, a consulate source said a strong oral protest had been made to the Jewish Agency, which disclaimed responsibility.

The Agency spokesman told this correspondent: "We control the exit of all Jewish persons between the ages of 17 and 40 who have made their home here, regardless of their citizenship. If they are over 40, they do not need an exit permit. In time of war, people have certain duties."

"It is not a legal issue," the spokesman declared. "It is a moral and political issue. Anybody who wants to live here must fight for it like the rest of us."

Asked about temporary residents, he said: "People like the American students who are here, for instance, will be allowed to leave, but it would be frowned upon. Any community at war likes people to escape and leave others behind."

Special instructions have been given, he said, that persons who wished to emigrate permanently should not be molested, but "what we object to is people who want to make their home here generally but want to stay away while there is trouble going on."

The Haganah has watchers who check travel agencies, ticket offices and other key points to identify those who hope to leave the country.

The spokesman explained that the Agency considered conscription to be in force and used whatever means it could to enforce it.

DP File For Visas

The Preparatory Commission of the International Refugee Organization is undertaking the registration of Jewish displaced persons who wish to be resettled in Palestine, at Frankfort On The Main, in the United States zone.

There are about 135,000 Jewish displaced persons in the United States zone, but registration also is taking place in the other zones, with Austria and Italy making the offer available to about 200,000 persons.

MARRIAGES

LAMBERT (LAMBERSKY)-BERLIN

The marriage of Mildred, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben. Berlin, 5890 Esplanade Avenue, to Saul Lambert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam. Lambersky, de Bullion Street, took place at New Beth Yehuda Synagogue on Saturday evening, January 7, Rabbi L. Syrek officiating.

OXMAN-ROTHMAN

The marriage of Miss Sonia Rothman, of Los Angeles, California, daughter of Mrs. A. Rothman, 5218 Clark Street, Montreal, to Jerry Oxman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oxman, of Atlanta, Georgia, took place in Los Angeles, on Saturday evening, February 14. The bridal couple took their wedding trip to Las Vegas, Nevada, and will reside at 400 South Wilmar Avenue, Los Angeles.

MENDELSOHN-MILLER

The marriage of Mildred, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben. Miller, 4645 Grand Boulevard, to Edward J. Mendelsohn, son of Mrs. E. Mendelsohn, 3544 Grey Avenue, and the late M. Mendelsohn, took place at the home of the groom, on February 8, at six o'clock, Rabbi Wilfred Shuchat officiating, assisted by Cantor Nathan Mendelson. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white satin gown, designed with a diamond-cut neckline, long sleeves, diamond-cut down the centre, net yoke, and long, tightly-fitted bodice, with a hooped skirt, and very long train. She had a small crown of lilies-of-the-valley, and carried a prayer-book, with a white orchid and streamers of white ribbon, and lilies-of-the-valley. Miss Eileen Riven, Vendome Avenue, the maid of honor, wore a yellow voile dress, with soft draping, and a large blue hat; and carried a bouquet of red roses. Miss Shirley Miller, sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid, in pink taffeta, with a sweetheart neckline, and short, puffed sleeves, and carried pink carnations. Myer Mendelsohn, brother of the groom, was best man. The house was decorated with foliage, palms, and large standards of snapdragons and lilies. "O, Promise Me" was sung. For the reception, the tables were decorated with snapdragons, and centrepieces composed of snapdragons and lilies. Lenny Rubin and his orchestra played. Mrs. Miller, mother of the bride, wore a beige lace gown, with a brown tulle hat, with brown ostrich feathers; and a deep purple orchid. Mrs. Mendelsohn, mother of the groom, wore a light blue gown, with a [illegible] and [illegible], the bride travelling in a grey suit, with a short jacket, and wide, full skirt; and black accessories. They will live at 3544 Grey Avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Barash, Mrs. J. Beitcher, and Mrs. B. Lewis, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. R. Caplan, and Monroe Rovins, of Plattsburg, N. Y.; and Ralph Vineberg, of Vancouver, B.C., were wedding guests.

KOSTMAN-RAGINSKY

The marriage of Natalie Merle, daughter of Mrs. A. O. Raginsky, Northcliffe Avenue, and of the late Alexander Oscar Raginsky, to Philip Kostman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Isadore L. Kostman, of Vancouver, B.C., took place on February 22, at four o'clock, at Cardy Hall of the Mount Royal Hotel, Rabbi Wilfred Shuchat officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Dr. A. B. Illievitz. She wore a brocaded lame gown, with a heart-shaped neckline, and long, pointed sleeves; and a bustle-back, with a long train. Her halo of orange blossoms, and pearl beads was arranged with a fingertip veil of illusion tulle; and she carried a white Bible, with baby orchids and bouvardia fastened to the markers. She had heirloom pearls as her only ornament. Mrs. Lester H. Hersh, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, wore a leaf-green crepe dress, with a matching picture hat, trimmed with green and white orchids, and carried a bouquet of the same flowers. Harry L. Kostman was best man for his brother; and the ushers were: Lester H. Hersh, brother-in-law of the bride; Bruce Raginsky, her brother; and Jack Heller and Louis Goldstein, her cousins. The decorations were of white snapdragons, and the ceremony was performed by candlelight. For the reception at the Palm Court and Cardy Hall, pink and white snapdragons were used for decoration. Mrs. Raginsky, mother of the bride, wore a long-sleeved dinner gown, of dove-grey crepe, and a hat of grey tulle and velvet orchids, and had a spray of purple orchids pinned to her handbag. Mrs. Kostman, mother of the groom, wore a powder-blue crepe dress, with a matching hat, and had a spray of pink orchids pinned to her handbag. Mr. and Mrs. Kostman left on their wedding trip, the bride travelling in a tomato-red suit, with a black Persian broadtail coat, and a corsage bouquet of green orchids. They will live in Vancouver. The bride was active with the Women's Voluntary Services for three years; and the groom is a graduate of the University of British Columbia.

ASHER-CARLINSKY

The marriage of Miriam, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Carlinsky, 5324 Park Avenue, to David Asher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Asher, 5971 Marquette Street, took place at Shaare Zion Synagogue on Sunday, December 28, at half-past seven o'clock, Rabbi Wilfred Shuchat officiating, assisted by Cantor Samuel Miller. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a long white slipper-satin dress, with a Chinese-styled neckline, long, pointed sleeves, and fitted bodice, with a full skirt, and long train. Her coronet was of white ostrich plumes, and her fingertip-length veil of silk illusion tulle. She carried white gardenias. Miss Bertha Carlinsky, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a gold-shaded moire taffeta floor-length dress, with a tiered skirt, and off-the-shoulder neckline; and a half-moon-shaped hat trimmed with green ostrich feather plumes, and flowers; and had pale green accessories. John Asher, cousin of the groom, was best man. The ushers were: Dr. Alexander Carlen, Louis Rosen, Lee Carlen, Irving Pivnick, Mos Etcovitch, Nat. Seltzer, Harry Hersh, and Louis Kerner. Candelabra illuminated the altar, which was adorned with standards of chrysanthemums. White organdy bows and satin ribbons joined the pews, and decorated the aisle. "O, Promise Me" was sung by a choir; and the Wedding March was played. For the reception at the Synagogue, the bride's table was arranged with flowers. Dinner music was played. Mrs. Carlinsky, mother of the bride, wore a pale blue [illegible] dress, Colonial-styled, with a fully train. The bodice was embroidered with a design of gold brilliants, inserted with pearl beads. She had a matching headdress crowned with blue ostrich feather plumes, and a wrist bouquet of gold-shaded roses. Mrs. Asher, mother of the groom, wore a black crepe evening gown, with gold-shaded trimming, and a coronet in black and gold color, with fuchsia-shaded feathers. She had a corsage of roses of fuchsin and gold shades. The bride and groom spent their wedding trip in the Laurentians, and are living in Montreal. Dr. Alexander Carlen, Mr. and Mrs. David Carlin, and Mr. and Mrs. D. Scherr, of New York, were wedding guests.

ROBINSON-SILVER

The marriage of Bessie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Silver, 5023 Jeanne Mance Street, to Abe Robinson, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wolff Robinson, of Bronx, N. Y., took place on Saturday, January 3, at half-past six o'clock, at Beth David Synagogue, Rabbi S. Hershorn officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown of white satin was designed with sweetheart neckline, tightly-fitted bodice, long, tightly-fitted, pointed sleeves, and full skirt with a long train. She had a white ostrich feather headdress and a fingertip-length veil of tulle illusion, and carried a white Bible with mauve orchids and streamers. Miss Fay Silver, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing a cerise dinner gown. The front of the bodice was covered with silver sequins and beads, and the skirt was draped on both sides. She had a matching ostrich-feather hat with a midnight blue veiling, and carried a cascade bouquet of Talisman roses. The best man was Fred Robinson, brother of the groom, of New York. The ushers were Martin and Elliott Gitlin, of New York; Barney Silver, of Toronto, Ont.; Hy. and Ben. Wener, and Herman Silver. The page boy was Meyer Nudel, nephew of the bride. The Synagogue was decorated with ferns, centrepieces, palms and candelabra, and a variety of floral decorations. "Because" was sung during the ceremony. Mrs. S. Silver, mother of the bride, wore a midnight-blue tunic gown with long-sleeves, which was trimmed with embroidered gold sequins and crystal beads of midnight-blue. Her matching hat had an interwoven halo of pink and blue net. Mrs. R. Gitlin, of New York, sister of the groom, wore a black gown draped, with a bustle in the back, and a headdress of gold spangled veiling, and had a mauve orchid. The bride and groom spent their honeymoon in the Laurentians. They are now residing in Montreal. Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. B. Gitlin, Martin and Elliott Gitlin, Mr. and Mrs. I. Lecevitsky, Fred Robinson, Mrs. J. Wolpert, Mildred Wolpert, of New York; Florence Waldman, of Jersey City, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. J. Yudelowitz, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. P. Kovnat of Camden, N. J.; Jack Silver, of Hamilton, Ont.; Barney, Meyer and Henry Silver, of Toronto, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. W. Rudy, of New Glasgow; and Miss Anne Podolsky, of Ottawa, Ont.

HERZOG-SOLTANOFF

The marriage of Bernice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Soltanoff, Esplanade Avenue, to Irving, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Herzog, de l'Epee Avenue, took place at Adath Israel Synagogue, on Tuesday, February 10, Rabbi Charles Bender officiating.

AMVETS HEAD URGES U. N. LEGION

Recruitment of a "United Nations Legion" to police Palestine after partition of that country on May 15 was urged in Washington by Edgar C. Corry Jr., national commander of AMVETS, an organization of veterans of World War II.

Mr. Corry advanced his suggestion in a letter to Secretary of State Marshall after a poll of AMVETS' membership revealed, he said, that 72 per cent favored "some form of international police."

The veterans' spokesmen asked that the State Department urge the United Nations to begin recruiting such a force immediately, "with a minimum strength of at least two divisions," and train it quickly to prepare to replace the British soldiers now in Palestine.

900,000 To Get Overseas Matzoh

The Joint Distribution Committee will provide 5,000,000 pounds of Passover matzoh and matzoh meal to European Jews this year—an average of five and a half pounds of the unleavened products for each of the 900,000 Jews being aided by the agency in Europe.

Passover begins at sunset on April 23 and ends seven days later for Reform Jews and eight days later for Conservative and Orthodox Jews. It commemorates the deliverance of the Israelites from bondage in Egypt about 1450 B.C.

Moses A. Leavitt, executive vice-chairman of the committee, said in New York that it would also ship 18,000 cases of Passover wine to Europe. The majority of matzoh and all of the matzoh meal will be shipped from the United States, Mr. Leavitt said, although 1,000,000 pounds of matzoh is being baked in the American zone of Germany. In addition, he said, the committee has allotted sufficient wheat to make 15,000 pounds of the product to these Jewish Orthodox groups in Germany who prefer to hand-bake their own Passover matzoh.

Grandparents are Mrs. M. B. Kacerman, 281 Major Street; and Mr. J. Weiner, 81 Mitchell Avenue.

Lost Group Kept Identity For 18 Centuries In China

The Hebrews of Kaifeng, one of the lost groups of history, maintained their racial and religious identity for some eighteen centuries in China. Then, says Dr. Joseph Preuss, of Shanghai, who has been conducting investigations into the origins of this little-known people, they finally were assimilated by the Chinese in the last few hundred years.

Dr. Preuss says he is convinced, after exhaustive research, that the Hebrews originally were silk traders from the Mediterranean who settled in Kaifeng, in the heart of China, long before the Christian era. They maintained their own community until about 400 years ago.

Although he calls the Kaifeng colony "China's forgotten Jews," it is uncertain whether they actually were members of the tribe of Judah. He says the few remaining inscriptions and references use only the term "Israel," which might cover any of the twelve tribes.

Dr. Preuss says he plans to publish a book soon on the results of his research. He has lectured on the subject to the Jewish colony of Shanghai.

At an interview, Dr. Preuss quoted Bishop William C. White, of Kaifeng, as saying "History shows that the people of China have a tremendous power to absorb alien races dwelling in their midst, and it is almost a miracle that the Kaifeng Jews managed to retain their separate institutions and beliefs for as long as eighteen centuries."

Dr. Preuss said he had concluded that during the period of the Roman Empire Hebrews from Persia developed a silk trade with China over the long caravan route through Turkestan. The traffic thrived until sea routes finally were discovered and silkworms were introduced into Europe.

Then the caravan system fell into disuse and the Kaifeng colony [illegible] in the difficult hunt for reliable information, he said, consisted of some stone tablets in Kaifeng.

An inscription on one of these, he said, was dated the equivalent of 1512 A.D. in the Christian calendar and said that the first Hebrews entered China during the Han Dynasty, 206 B.C. to 221 A.D. Another tablet, however, says they arrived in the Chou Dynasty (before 255 B.C.).

Dr. Preuss's own belief is that there was no mass migration, but a long-continuing movement of individual traders with their families. After months of searching through antique shops, Dr. Preuss said he had found a few clay figurines of the Tang Dynasty (618 to 907 A.D.) which had obvious Semitic features and non-Chinese dress.

"These figures," he theorized, "were used for tomb burials by Chinese who wanted to be comforted in the future world not only by their earthly possessions but also by their foreign tradesmen."

In further support of his conclusions he said he had come across a sheet of passages from the Psalms and Prophets dating back to the eighth century, and one of the oldest Hebrew manuscripts in existence. It was found in Tun Huang, on the southern caravan route in eastern Turkestan.

"As paper at that time was made only in China," he said, "this indicates that Hebrew traders from China were using that route."

In addition he has traced to the end of the Han Dynasty three Hebrew-inscribed stones found in Loyang, in Honan province, also on the ancient caravan route.

Dr. Preuss said that evidences of some Hebrew communities on the south China coast led some historians to assume that Jews entered China only from the sea, but he believes these were much later arrivals as the old Kaifeng community, far in the interior, was the largest.

At one time, he estimated, the community in Kaifeng numbered several thousand persons and included provincial governors, judges and scholars. Dr. Preuss said inscriptions found at Kaifeng showed a synagogue was built in 1163 A. D., but there were indications that there were much earlier ones, rebuilt several times over the centuries after damage by fires and floods.

A Jesuit party which visited Kaifeng in the eighteenth century reported finding a Hebrew community in existence but declining rapidly. In 1850 two Christian Chinese from Shanghai visited Kaifeng and reported the synagogue was dilapidated and the 300 to 400 persons of Hebrew blood too poor to repair it.

Dr. Preuss also quoted a Protestant named Dr. W.A.P. Martin as reporting after an 1866 visit that he had found only a memorial stone, dated 1489, on the synagogue site. By 1910 the stone still stood, but the site had become a pond.

This badly weathered stone and another, dated 1663, which had been built into a Chinese house, were acquired in 1913 by a Canadian church mission which bought the site. Now filled in, it is used for a Y.M.C.A. playground.

The last report of an investigator, Dr. Preuss said, was in 1932, when David A. Brown, an American, went to Kaifeng. He talked to some persons who recalled being told by their parents of their unusual ancestry and of the ancient synagogue.

Palestine Music Proves Dull

An audience which taxed the capacity of Carnegie Recital Hall gathered to hear a program of Palestinian music performed by Joachim (cellist-composer) and Julia (soprano) Stutchevsky, assisted by Joseph Bernstein, violin, and Robert Starer, piano.

All the performers presented their native music with great devotion and, generally speaking, a high degree of competence. There also can be no doubt that the music, both "art" and "folk" forms, comprising the program was of great interest and frequently of arresting beauty and expression. On the other hand, it is debatable whether a whole evening of music of such national and racial character is of sufficient variety to hold the listeners' unflagging attention.

In a foreword, Frederick Jacobi spoke briefly and interestingly of the simultaneous growth of folk and art music in Palestine, for which, he said, its composers possess the "will, intelligence and know-how." Whether they have evolved other characteristics making for great intrinsic value is another matter.

The melodic material is as yet the most important distinguishing feature of this music. The instrumental music heard, including "Variations of a Jewish Theme" by R. Ben-Hayim, although it ranges in texture from polytonality to unashamed unisons, leans heavily upon all-too-familiar reiterative devices, both rhythmic and that known as "ostinato." After a time such repetitions tended toward a monotony to which the prevalence of lugubrious melody added intensification.

Even the love songs, of which there were three in succession in the first half of the program, completely lacked ecstasy, although Mrs. Stutchevsky sang them with beauty of tone and appropriate emotional inflection.

In later numbers, including a Palestinian Suite for cello and piano by Jacob Stutchevsky, the closing "Sephardic Dance" was of stimulating vigor, "of the earth, earthy," while another dance, a "Hora" from Marc Lavry's Palestinian dances for violin and piano, resembled the "Flight of the Bumblebee" too closely for comfort, says the New York Herald Tribune.

That's when a man is really down. A fellow risks everything else before he parts with his shirt. That goes last. He values it too much.
The expression loie your shirt is used for good reasons. A good cotton shirt is something to cherish. The same amount of money could buy nothing of similar quality.
That applies also to cotton bed sheets, handkerchiefs, gowns, and scores of other items of daily use that are made of cotton. Cotton with its freshness, its washability, its resistance to sun and heat and its durability gives top value for your money.
You can bet your shirt on that!

University To Give Courses In Yiddish

The University of California at Los Angeles, will introduce in its summer session of 1948 two fully accredited courses in Yiddish. Dr. Max Weinreich, research director of the Yiddish Scientific Institute — Yivo, was invited as visiting professor for these courses, Yiddish Folk Literature and Folklore, for students in the upper division of the college; Yiddish Language and Linguistics, for graduates.

In the fall of 1947, the College of the City of New York introduced into its curriculum Yiddish language and literature as accredited courses. The decision of the University of California marks an advance in this direction. This is the first time that Yiddish is introduced into the academic program of an institution of university rank.

Last year the Regents of the University of California approved the establishment of a fellowship in Jewish folklore, with Howard Bloomfield, a graduate of the College of the City of New York, as the first fellow. The initiative for this fellowship as well as for the introduction of Yiddish into the curriculum came from Professor Sol. Liptzin, chairman of the German Department of the College of the City of New York, and secretary of the Academic Council, Yivo, who was visiting professor at the California institution last summer.

To facilitate the study of the Yiddish language and its literature, the Library of the University of California has begun a systematic acquisition of books in that field, with the cooperation of the friends of Yivo in Los Angeles.

Before the University made its decision, Professor Paul A. Dodd, dean of the College, and Professor Wayland D. Hand, chairman of the Department of Germanic Languages and editor of the Journal of American Folklore, had visited the Yivo and acquainted themselves with its activities. In his letter officially confirming the establishment of the courses, Professor Hand writes: "We hope that this will mark the beginning of an active collaboration between our Department and the Yiddish Scientific Institute."

The Joint Distribution Committee's child-care program provides for 138,000 out of Europe's 182,000 Jewish children. Among those aided are 51,600, mostly orphans, in 326 JDC-supported homes, nurseries and other institutions.

Curiosity may have killed the cat, but it has led many men to do great things.

Because Dr. Lister wondered why so many patients died after operations, he discovered that germs cause infection, and developed modern antiseptic practices. For our modern lighting we can thank Edison's curiosity about electricity. Again, curiosity about what and how people buy, led Woolworth to develop a new kind of store which grew into a multi-million dollar chain.

You may make some profitable discoveries by asking yourself (and others) questions about everything from mousetraps to market trends. Knowledge is Power. The more you learn, provided you have the ability to use such knowledge, increases your value to your employer and may start you on a new and exciting career.

And don't forget to be curious about people, too. A study of their tastes, wants, behaviour and opinions can be equally rewarding.

Reports Birobidjan In State Of Decay

In view of the Soviet Union's advocacy of the partition of Palestine into Jewish and Arab states and of the quiet anti-Semitism that still obtains in many areas of the Soviet Union it is interesting to report on the province of Birobidjan.

This autonomous Jewish district was established in the early days of the Soviet Union on the Trans-Siberian Railway in the Far East. Jews were encouraged to migrate within the Soviet borders to establish their own seat of national culture. Russian and Yiddish are the official languages of Birobidjan.

An observer recently spent considerable time there. He expressed the opinion that the Soviet Government had lost interest in that area as "a project of importance" and that this haven for an oppressed people was being permitted to fall into decay. At best, he said, it is treated on a parity with other remote parts of the Soviet Union and no longer as a dream project.

Travelers are rarely permitted to inspect that distant province.

Although, because they feel uncomfortable in conditions in which the anti-Semitism engendered during the war has not died out, Jews, especially intellectuals from Russia proper, are still emigrating to Birobidjan, they are likely to be disappointed by what they find, according to my informant, writes C. L. Sulzberger, in the New York Times, from Paris.

He said that the oblast, or district, of Birobidjan, which has a rugged climate, consisted of only a few villages in addition to the town of Birobidjan, in which lived about 30,000 inhabitants, somewhat less than a third of the oblast's population.

The town, he added, is built entirely of wood except for fewer than a dozen brick buildings, and contains three cobbled streets, an Intourist hotel and a few small factories. These are a brick factory, a sawmill, a textile factory, and wagon and pipe works. The town has no sewerage system or water supply, the observer remarked.

Although families are not so crowded as in Moscow and often have more than three rooms, they live primitively, usually in two-story wood apartment houses for ten to twenty families, according to the informant. The buildings, he said, are constructed around a courtyard in whose center is a lavatory pit and garbage dump.

Most of these buildings were erected within the last fifteen years but are now in an unusual state of dilapidation. The town is built on swamps, and some foundations have sunk to a depth of ten feet, the observer said.

As a result, he went on, the brick buildings have cracked and the wood ones warped, with many floors rotted by the unusual damp of the summer rainy season. Only a few trucks and old buses were said to make up the transportation system. To obtain water the inhabitants often have to travel two or three miles in communal trucks.

Most of the population subsists mainly on locally grown potatoes and vegetables, according to the traveler. These are produced in allotments worked after hours in the factories and state projects, he said. To support their families, many of the men have had to take two jobs, he added. One engineer was said to be feeding his wife and children by working nineteen hours a day.

The local factories once received good material from western Russia, but a lack of repairs has induced what the observer described as a "state of interruped breakdown." Thus, although Birobidjan has a pipe factory, it has no sewers, he remarked.

Despite the original dream of forming a Jewish state in Birobidjan, its Jewish population is less than one-fourth the total, according to the informant, who said that the Jews nevertheless held many of the administrative positions, including the local party secretaryship.

The secret police has its outposts in Birobidjan, the observer declared. One of its main functions was said to be to prevent disillusioned pioneers from departing.

In the Soviet Union in general it was learned that allegedly as a result of the gradual exclusion of Jews from public life (with a few notable exceptions such as Jacob Surits, recently Ambassador to Brazil, and Vice Premier Lazar M. Kaganovich) certain Jewish leaders protested recently to Foreign Minister Molotov about anti-Semitic trends.

Mr. Molotov was said to have intimated that Governmental action might be taken later when circumstances were "more favorable."

Mr. Kaganovich, a member of the Politburo and a friend of Premier Stalin was said to have made similar and firmer promises. Soviet Jews seemed to have hope that their situation might become more favorable since the death more than two years ago of A. S. Shcherbakov, a Politburo alternate who was reputed to be the most powerful anti-Semite in the Soviet Union.

Trends toward anti-Semitism appear to have brought about more group consciousness in Soviet Jews, and the membership of organizations such as the Jewish Anti-Fascist Committee is growing.

There are indications of a greater desire of Soviet Jews to emigrate to Birobidjan. Anti-Semitism may also have some bearing on recent British contentions that Communist Jews, many of whom spoke Russian, had migrated to Palestine.

The Canadian Jewish Review is the only Jewish publication in Canada printed in any language reaching the Jewish community which is able to claim membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

H.U. CLASSES MEET IN FACULTY HOMES

Because of the fighting in Palestine, classes of the Hebrew University sometimes must be held in the homes of faculty members in Jerusalem, but the center is carrying on literary and scientific research in its buildings atop Mount Scopus, Sir Leon Simon, chairman of the university's executive council, declared in New York at the headquarters of the American Friends of the Hebrew University, 9 East Eighty-ninth Street.

Sir Leon arrived recently to take part in a campaign to raise $1,200,000 for the university's maintenance. He traced the $250,000 increase in the annual budget to the cost of providing military protection for the faculty and students and also to the high cost of living in Palestine.

Most of the 1,100 students belong to the Haganah, Jewish military group, Sir Leon reported. Almost 150 are former GI's who "of course must act within their obligations as United States citizens and conduct themselves accordingly," he added.

Sees Huge U.S.-Holy Land Trade

The Jewish state in Palestine would buy annually at least from $50,000,000 to $70,000,000 of American-made goods through a reciprocal trade agreement with the United States, Dr. Warner Feilchenfeld, president of the Export Union of Palestine, said in a report published in New York by the United Palestine Appeal.

The appeal provides the funds for the rehabilitation of immigrants and the over-all development agency of the United Jewish Appeal currently engaged in a nation-wide campaign to raise $250,000,000.

Dr. Feilchenfeld in his survey, "Jewish Palestine and World Trade," pictures the part the new Jewish state is expected to play in its foreign relations, particularly with the United States.

"There is a vast potential for close economic ties between the two countries for the mutual benefit of both the United States and Palestine," he reported.

This could be carried out "by the foundation of an American development company for Jewish Palestine as a holding company promoting development projects and cooperation between American business men and the Jewish state, and the formation of a 'Chamber of Commerce in the United States for Palestine' as a non-sectarian American organization stimulating economic cooperation between both countries," he said.

The report pointed out that imports from the United States consist mainly of manufactured goods and raw material to be processed, while exports include diamonds, representing about 90 per cent of the total export to the U.S., olive oil, wine and brandy, religious articles, raw wool and books. In 1946 Palestine imported goods from the United States valued at $23,000,000 and exported $20,000,000 worth, Dr. Feilchenfeld said.

Brakeman is hero in head-on train crash
WINS DOW AWARD

ALEX TIPLER
OF NORTH BAY, ONTARIO
shows endurance and courage in rescue work

Alex Tipler was riding in the caboose of the freight train when it happened. The terrific impact of the collision, with the accompanying scream of steel smashing against steel, sounded like an explosion in the pre-dawn quiet. The brakeman was thrown onto the floor . . . and for an instant he lay, dazed and semi-conscious.

In a few seconds, however, he was up . . . and, plowing his way along the icy stretch beside the train, he reached the twisted wreck of the locomotives. Extricating a fellow brakeman from the debris, he carried him back the full length of the train to the caboose. Then once again he returned to the engines . . . and, in spite of a badly bruised back, helped to get the young firemen out of the wreckage and back to the caboose. Then, his back giving him great pain, Tipler stumbled for two miles through deep snow in the sub-zero dawn to a small village. Here he was able to get a message through to the railroad headquarters about the accident.

The courage and matchless of this young brakeman merits great praise. We are proud to pay tribute to Alex Tipler of North Bay, Ontario, through the presentation of The Dow Award.

On a sharp curve near Cobalt the two freights crashed head-on. In a second the locomotives were a mass of twisted, steaming steel. Box-cars tumbled off the tracks like toys.

Having already done more than his share, Alex Tipler nevertheless did not quit. Walking two miles in the sub-zero temperature, he summoned more aid and sent word of the smash-up to railway headquarters.

THE DOW AWARD is a mission for outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Canada Savings Bond. Winners are selected by the Dow Award Committee, a group of editors of leading Canadian newspapers.

Social Notes—Montreal

(Additional Montreal Social Notes on Pages Two and Three)

Mr. and Mrs. A. Robinson, 1980 Barclay Avenue, celebrated the bar-mitzvah of their only son, Morris, who was called to the Reading of the Law at Adath Israel Synagogue. Receiving one hundred and twenty guests at a kiddush at the Synagogue, Mrs. Robinson wore a navy-blue gabardine suit, with a gray felt hat. Mr. and Mrs. I. Graif, Stuart Avenue, uncle and aunt of Morris, assisted, the latter wearing a green suit, with a multi-colored silk hat. At a dinner and reception, with one hundred and twenty-five guests present, at the Synagogue, Mrs. Robinson wore a light-blue crepe dinner gown, with a corsage of pink and red roses; and her daughter, Esther, aged six, wore a long pink taffeta dress, with blue trimming, and a blue hair-ribbon. Morris is the grandson of Samuel Robinson, Park Avenue. Mrs. Samuel Robinson wore a black crepe dress. H. Goldman, Lajoie Avenue, great-uncle of Morris, was toastmaster; and the speakers were Rabbi Charles Bender; M. L. Mendelson, principal of Adath Israel School; and L. Talovsky, his teacher. Morris spoke in Hebrew and in English. The head-table centrepiece was of spring flowers and carnations. Mrs. Bertha Goldsman, of Buffalo, N. Y., great-aunt of Morris; Mrs. Dora Rosenthal, his great-aunt, and her daughter, Mrs. IrvingFineberg; and Mr. and Mrs. David Rubin, his great-uncle and great-aunt, and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Palmer, all of Ottawa, Ont.; were guests.

Entertaining at a linen shower at the Queen's Hotel, for Miss Elsie Cohen, fiancee of Bernard Siminovitch, and bride-elect of March 14, were: Mesdames M. Matta, St. Urbain Street; S. Lutterman, de Bullion Street; I. Finkelstein, Van Horne Avenue; M. Abrams, Clark Street; and H. Schwartz, Saranac Avenue, all sisters of Mrs. A. Cohen, mother of the bride-elect. Mrs. Matta wore a black dress with colored beading; Mrs. Lutterman, a mauve silk jersey printed dress; Mrs. Finkelstein, a pink printed dress; Mrs. Abrams, a black dress; and Mrs. Schwartz, a blue printed dress. Their corsages were of roses and carnations. Miss Cohen, wearing a floor-length model of ivory satin, with a yoke with a black background and a multi-colored print, a black hat with pink sweet peas, and a corsage of white carnations. Misses Ray Siminovitch was in a black dress, trimmed in pink, and a black hat, with a pink flower; Dora Siminovitch, in a suit, with a grey hat; Vida Siminovitch, black dress, with a maroon hat; and Mrs. J. Mann, Bagg Avenue, black dress, with a flowered front. All sisters of the groom-elect had corsages of roses and carnations. Mrs. J. Cohen, Henri Julien Street, grandmother of the bride-elect, was present. The honoree wore a black dress, with part of the bodice pink, and trimmed with gold-shaded nailheads in a flower design; and a black hat trimmed with sweet peas.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil. Doynarsky, 5704 Clark Street, celebrated the bar-mitzvah of their only son, Murray Erwin, who was called to the Reading of the Law at Bnai Jacob Synagogue. He is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Morris Doynarsky, and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Krupp. The late Mr. Krupp was the first vice-president of Bnai Jacob Synagogue. There was a kiddush, with seventy-five guest at the Synagogue, and a luncheon at home, with sixty guests. At a dinner and dance two hundred and twenty guests were present the following evening, at the Synagogue. Mrs. Doynarsky wore a black crepe floor-length dress, with a three-quarter-length lace peplum, and lace bodice and sleeves; grey tulle hat, trimmed with deep pink roses, and a corsage of matching pink roses. The head table was decorated with six arrangements of spring flowers, and white tapers, and the other tables held white tapers. Sydney Krupp, cousin of the bar-mitzvah boy, was master of ceremonies. Present from out-of-town were: Mrs. M. Cohen, of New York, aunt of Murray Erwin; Miss Gertrude Abramson, of New London, Conn. Mr. and Mrs. J. Teitzman, Sam Teitzman, Mr. and Mrs. F. Teitzman and family; Mr. and Mrs. B. Geller and family; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Koerner, Mr. and Mrs. Sol. Goldstein, Mesdames Ada Katz, Tillie Applebaum, I. Miller, B. Cadsilla, and Bella Teitzman, aged eighty-five, aunt of the bar-mitzvah, all of Rochester, N. Y.

Those entertaining for Mrs. A. Robinson, formerly Miss Bessie Silver, were: Mrs. B. Silver, 5023 Jeanne Mance Street, mother of the bride, at two teas, one at home, with fifty guests; and an other, with fifty guests, at which the bride was presented with a chest of silver; Misses Fay and Rebecca Berson, and Mrs. H. CLASS IN COOKERY

one-quarter teaspoon vanilla
one-quarter tablespoon icing sugar
one-half cup whipping cream
two four-ounce packages cream cheese
two tablespoons milk
twelve or fourteen graham crackers one-eighth cup finely chopped nuts two tablespoons icing sugar
one-half cup whipping cream

Blend the cheese and milk, until light and fluffy. Add the two tablespoons icing sugar, and chopped nuts. Spread this mixture between crackers, and stack them, one on top of the other. Place the whole, lengthwise, on a platter, to form a loaf. Whip the cream, add one-quarter tablespoon icing sugar, and vanilla, and spread this over sides and top of loaf. Chill in refrigerator for two or three hours. Slice diagonally. This makes six or eight servings.

Mrs. M. Elman,

831 Stuart Avenue, Montreal.

NUT ROAST

two cups of bread
one cup of chopped walnuts
one-quarter cup peanut butter
one-half cup tomato juice
one ounce butter
two eggs
pinch of pepper and salt
grated onion
sage or parsley

Soak dry crusts in cold water. Squeeze dry and beat with fork. Mix all together and form in sausage-shaped roll. Put into baking tin and cover with greased paper. Bake in moderate oven, about 325 degrees, for one hour and serve hot with brown gravy.

Mrs. M. Simmons,

MARRIAGES

GOODMAN-CLARFIELD

The marriage of Lorraine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Goodman, 156 Pendrith Avenue, to Paul, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jack Clarfield, took place at Yeshivah Torah Chaim, on Sunday, January 25, at five o'clock, Rabbi Judah Washer officiating, assisted by Cantors A. Steinberg, and B. Charloff. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. Her blush-colored satin lace-trimmed gown was studded with seed-pearl-bead neckline, and had cap sleeves, long lace gloves, and fitted bodice, with full skirt. Her lace tiara was ornamented with beads, and she carried a bible adorned with streamers of ribbons, and orchids. Mrs. Irving Sussman, sister of the bride, was matron of honour, wearing a blue metallic gown, and matching headdress, and carried a nosegay. The bridesmaids were Misses Belle Trefler and Edith Goldberg, in pink; and Mesdames Leo Farber, and W. Clarfield, in blue gowns, with floral headdresses and matching nosegays. Marilyn Clarfield was flower girl, wearing a pink dress with matching crown, and carried a basket of rose petals. Albert Mandelbaum was best man, and the ushers were: Leo Farber, Stanley Sager, and William and Gordon Clarefield. Howard Cohen was ring-bearer, wearing a tuxedo and top hat. Mrs. Goodman, mother of the bride, received, wearing a gray beaded gown, and an orchid in her hair. The bride and groom spent their honeymoon in New York, the former travelling in a powder-blue suit, and black accessories. They are residing at 176 Fairleigh Crescent. Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Sager, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Nadler, of Montreal, Que.; Mrs. P. Gottleib and Mr. and Mrs. Morris Gold of Flint, Mich.

LAPIN-ADELMAN

The marriage of Doris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Adelman, 150 Casgrain Place, Windsor, to Jack Lapin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lapin, Baltimore, Maryland, took place on Sunday, February 15, at half-past four o'clock, at Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue, in Windsor, Ont., Rabbi Benjamin Groner officiating, assisted by Cantor Adler. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a candlelight-satin gown, the full skirt extending to a fan-shaped train, long sleeves tapering at the wrists, with a fitted bodice, and neckline of sheer heart-shaped yoke, with a deep bertha of Chantilly lace. Her tulle illusion veil covered the train of her gown and was held in place by a headdress of satin embroidered with seed pearl beads, and carried a cascade of Calla lilies. Mrs. Morris Aarons, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing a white crepe gown, with fitted bodice, square neckline, and embroidered with silver and white beads, cap sleeves, and slim skirt, with inverted pleats. She had matching mitts, and a large picture hat of white crepe, trimmed with white roses, and carried a cascade of orchids and white hyacinths. The bridesmaids were: Misses Eve Adelman, Faye Richards, Eileen Kay, Jewel Klein, and Harriet Hounman, all wearing white marquisette gowns, with off-the-shoulder necklines, outlined with satin, full bishop sleeves, caught in satin bands at the wrists, and very full skirts. They had white picture hats trimmed with white marquisette roses, and carried cascades of red rose. Marjorie and Judith Deitz, of Baltimore, were flower girls, wearing white taffeta dresses, with high waistlines, full skirts, ruffled to the floor, and bonnets of white taffeta. They carried nosegays of spring flowers and Sweetheart roses. Albert Lapin, brother of the groom, was best man, and Arthur Adelman, Frank Adelman, Jack Adelman, David Mendelsohn, of Flint, Mich.; Bernard Moorin, of Detroit, Mich, were ushers. Stanley Fisher, was ring-bearer, wearing a white Eton suit, and carried the ring on a lace-trimmed satin pillow. Stephen Applebaum was train-bearer, wearing a white suit. The synagogue was decorated in all white, snapdragons, tulips, and chrysanthemums, and floor standards holding burning tapers. The choir sang "O, Promise Me" and the Cantor sang a traditional song. For the reception the synagogue auditorium was decorated with white spring flowers. Mrs. Adelman, mother of the bride, received in a gown of aquamarine-blue crepe, with silver beading on the bodice, a hat of matching tulle, and a corsage of pale mauve orchids. Mrs. Lapin, mother of the groom, received in a rose-colored crepe gown, with matching hat and a corsage of pale mauve orchids. The bride and groom left for New Orleans, Louisiana, and Miami, Florida, the former wearing a two-piece dress, the skirt of navy-blue and the fitted jacket of white trimmed in navy, a navy straw sailor, and a corsage of orchids. They will reside in Baltimore.

MARRIAGES

GASS-SILVER

The marriage of Faye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Silver, 671 College Street, to Jay Gass, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. S. Gass, of Philadelphia, Pa., took place on Sunday, January 11, at Chudleigh House. Rabbi Reuben Slonim officiated. Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a white satin gown, fashioned with a nylon yoke. Her fingertip net veil fell from a coronet of shirred velling, and she carried a cascade of white Calla lilies. Mrs. Samuel Silver, sister-in-law to the bride, was matron of honour, wearing a powder-blue crepe gown, trimmed with sequins, and carried a nosegay of yellow and pink roses. I. Gass, brother of the groom, was best man. The mother of the bride received in a black and beige dress, accented with gold sequins, with a corsage of pink and yellow roses. The bride and groom left for New York, the former wearing a light blue wool suit, Persian lamb coat, winter-white hat, and a corsage of orchids. Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Jack Koss, Mrs. Esther Fineberg, Mrs. S. Dosen and I. Dosen, all of Philadelphia, Pa.; Mrs. Harry Silverberg, of New York; and Abraham Mussman, of Sardinia, Ohio.

FREEDMAN-MAHOFSKY

The marriage of Clara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Mahofsky, 141 Beatrice Street, to Alvin Freedman, son of Reuben Freedman, 81 Claremont Street, and the late Mrs. Freedman, took place on February 15, at half-past five o'clock, at Murray House, with Rabbi D. Monson officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. Her ivory satin gown was made with a high round neckline, fitted bodice, and full skirt. Her seed pearl coronet caught a long tulle veil and, she carried a cascade of Calla lilies. Mrs. H. Melnick was matron of honour, wearing a royal-blue afternoon dress, and tiara of red roses, and carried a cascade of red roses. W. Gula was best man. A reception followed. Mrs. Mahofsky, wore a grey afternoon dress, with a corsage of mixed rose; and Mrs. Philip Kleinberg, aunt of the groom, was in a grey afternoon dress, with a corsage of red and yellow roses. The bride and groom left for a wedding trip to Montreal, Quebec, the former travelling in beige and red wool suit, with a muskrat coat, and winter-white hat. Mr. and Mrs. J. Girardi, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. D. Goldman, and Mrs. Lottie Cohen, of Montreal, Quebec; and Mr. and Mrs. J. Caplan, of Hamilton, were guests. The bride and groom will reside at 141 Beatrice Street.

WEINSTEIN-DEBORA

The marriage of Sara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Debora, 137 Borden Street, to Herman A. Weinstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Weinstein, 45 Commonwealth Street, Buffalo, N.Y., took place on January 18, at noon, at Murray House, Rabbi D. Monson officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a white velvet gown, with draped front, bustle-back, and square neckline, trimmed with white pearl beads. Her long, full veil was caught to a velvet tiara, trimmed with white pearl beads, and she carried a Bible with orchids and streamers of white roses. Mrs. M. Rogow, the bride's sister, was matron of honour, wearing a royal-blue crepe gown, with draped front and bustle-back and headdress of royal-blue ostrich feathers, and carrying a bouquet of white carnations. Sandford Weinstein, brother of the groom, was best man. Mrs. Debora received in a rusty-brown sequin-trimmed dress, with a corsage of Talisman roses; Mrs. Weinstein, wearing a navy-blue print dress, with a corsage of red roses. The bride and groom left for a wedding trip to New York, the former travelling in a black dressmaker suit, with wine-coloured accessories, and a Persian lamb coat. The bride and groom will reside in Buffalo Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. I. Weinstein, of Newark, N.J.; Mr. and Mrs. A. Weinstein, and Mr. and Mrs. I. Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. D. Gold, Mr. and Mrs. H. Forman, Mr. and Mrs. B. Pallas, Mr. and Mrs. L. Schwartzberg, all of Buffalo; and Mr. and Mrs. C. Abramowitz, of Niagara Falls, N.Y.

JARVIS-SAMUELS

The marriage of Miss Harriette Samuels, daughter of Mrs. B. Samuels, Wells Street, to W. Leonard Jarvis, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. Jarvis, of London, England, took place at the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Turofsky, Wembley Road, on Thursday, February 26, at half-past two o'clock, Rabbi Reuben Slonim officiating. The Wedding March was played by Mrs. L. Turofsky, aunt of the bride. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, L. Turofsky. She wore a two-piece powder-blue ballerina frock, and grey accessories, and carried a cascade of white carnations and freesia. She was attended by her sister, Miss Charlotte Samuels, who wore heaven-blue crepe, and pale pink accessories, and carried a bouquet of pink roses and freesia. Carol Susan and Rita Nancy Turofsky were flower girls, wearing pink sister dresses and carried nosegays to match. Nat Turofsky was groomsman. At dinner for the immediate family, the bride's mother received in a pale yellow crepe dress, with matching accessories, and a corsage of coral-coloured roses; Mrs. Leslie Hill, aunt of the bride, receiving, in black crepe, with a corsage of red roses. On their return from their wedding trip the couple will make their home on Wells Street.

WALTMAN-SILVERMAN

The marriage of Sara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Silverman, 501 Euclid Avenue, to Jack, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Waltman, 652 Richmond Street West, took place on February 15, at Shaw Street Synagogue, with Rabbi S. Langer officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. Her white brocaded metallic satin gown was in Victorian style, with a bertha collar and seed pearl beads, long sleeves, and a tightly-fitted bodice, with a full skirt falling into a four-yard-long train. Her finger-tip veil was draped to a crown, trimmed with seed pearl beads, and she carried a Bible, trimmed with gardenias and streamers. Mrs. Harry Cohen, sister of the bride, was matron of honour, in a yellow satin period gown, with a crown of yellow satin, and carried a cascade of roses. The bridesmaids, Misses Sylvia Silver, Thelma Brickman, and Faye Iseman, wore blue, and Miss Charlotte Silverman, pink, and all had crowns of roses, with matching nosegays. Sharron Campbell and Barbara Linsky were junior bridesmaids, the first in a pink off-the-shoulder gown; the second in a blue net gown, with a sweetheart neckline; both with crowns of roses and matching nosegays. Joseph Waltman, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were Frank Silverman, Joseph Bernstein, Paul Waldman, and Morris Silver. The Synagogue was decorated with palms, and "Because" was sung. The reception was at Shaw Street Synagogue. Mrs. Silverman received in a blue crepe gown, with silver sequins, and a corsage of red roses; Mrs. Waltman, in a grey crepe gown, trimmed with silver sequins, and a corsage of red roses. The bride and groom left for a wedding trip to New York, the former wearing a black serge dressmaker suit, with green accessories, a muskrat coat, and a corsage of orchids. They will reside at 501 Euclid Avenue. Out-of-town guests were: Mrs. H. Cohen and Frank Silverman, of Chatham; Mr. and Mrs. M. Gross, of Buffalo, N.Y.; and Mr. and Mrs. I. Cohen, of London.

do it," he said, "and I don't mean my wife, either. Ninety-nine per cent of Braille transcribers are women—men don't have the time — and they are always coming across confusing points. Some of them even used to call me up at home and ask me, 'How about this?' and 'How about that?' So I decided we needed a book.

"This will make Braille more unified. The basic rules are well known—anybody can learn Braille—but they need to be interpreted and illustrated. For instance, there are 185 contractions which can be used only on specific occasions. This book has listings of contractions, abbreviations, problem words, etc., and achives uniformity, so it should help blind people as much as transcribers. It will get the same word used in the same way by all transcribers — which is something we don't have now."

Mr. Krebs, who has been blind since the age of nine, would not estimate the amount of time that could be saved by transcribing books with the help of his handbook. He pointed out, however, that Braille transcription was an extended job. The Braille edition of "Gone With the Wind," he said, runs to thirty volumes.

study under Carl Jung, the psychiatrist, at Zurich and under Dr. Freud at Vienna.

In 1909 Dr. Brill returned to the United States. He translated some of Freud's psychoanalytic writings into English and published them in book form. He became chief of the [illegible] in psychiatry at Columbia University in 1911, and by the outbreak of World War I he was also lecturing at New York University, the New York Post-Graduate Medical School and the New York State Psychiatric Institute.

In the war Dr. Brill joined the United States Army Medical Corps to train psychiatrists. In World War II he was consultant on neuropsychiatry at the Selective Service induction center at Grand Central Palace.

Dr. Brill was the founder of the New York Psycho-analytic Society, a founder and former president of the American Psychoanalytic Association and a member of the American Medical Association, American Psychiatric Association, the American Psychopathological Association, the American Therapeutic Society, the New York Psycho-analytic Institute, the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the New York Academy of Medicine.

He was the author of "Psychoanalysis," "Fundamental Conceptions of Psychoanalysis" and "Freud's Contribution to Psychiatry." Besides translating most of Dr. Freud's writings he edited foreign textbooks on psychiatry for use in the United States and wrote many pamphlets and papers on psychiatric subjects.

U.N. Palestine Commission To Govern, Legal Experts Hold

Holding that the United Nations Palestine Commission will become the legally constituted Government of Palestine after Britain surrenders the mandate on May 15, United Nations legal experts have upheld the legality of the Security Council's taking action in the event of Arab resistance.

The opinion holds that the Security Council has the right to invoke enforcement measures, which under the Charter range from an economic boycott to a collective declaration of war by all members of the United Nations, for the protection of a United Nations agency.

This finding, which was contained in a long study of the legal situation regarding the implementation of the Palestine resolution, was transmitted to members of the Council by Trygve Lie, secretary general of the United Nations. The opinion which was prepared for the guidance of the Palestine Commission, holds also that the Security Council has no power to alter any of the terms of the partition by the General Assembly on Nov. [illegible].

This does not mean, however, that the Security Council is required to take steps to carry out the entire resolution, word for word.

Britain already has refused to comply with the Assembly's request that she make available the port of Haifa to the Palestine Commission by Feb. 1 for Jewish immigration, and it is now obvious that the commission will not be able to comply with the further recommendation that it establish provisional councils of government in both the Jewish and Arab states by April 1.

In view of the slowness of the Security Council to act, it is generally believed, in fact, that the commission will be a month late in setting up the council of government in the Jewish State.

The Arab Higher Committee for Palestine has insisted throughout that it will not take part in establishing the Arab State. This in turn will make it impossible to establish an economic union in Palestine, which is an even more fundamental part of the Assembly resolution.

The opinion holds that the Security Council is not committed to carry out parts of the partition plan that are unworkable, and that it can use its discretion about the enforcement measures it takes. The opinion emphasizes that such implementation as the commission effects must be strictly in accordance with the assembly resolution, says the New York Times.

The opinion is not necessarily binding upon members of the Security Council, but well-informed sources said that if it was accepted it would render fruitless the attempt of the United States and other delegations to alter the partition plan enough to gain the acquiescence of the Arabs.

If the opinion is upheld, either the Security Council can take the steps necessary to carry out partition, or the matter can be referred back to the General Assembly for reconsideration. As the British have declared they will give up the mandate May 15, and the Assembly will not hold its next regular session until September, a special session would be necessary.

made it clear that in his eyes the question of Palestine was linked to the entire future of the United Nations as a peace-keeping organization.

"What is involved here is far more than a technical legal question," he said. "It is a question whether the United Nations is to be an effective instrument for world peace and the salvation of mankind or whether it is to be but an impressive stage-setting for actors and supernumeraries busily engaged in a meaningless play of long-winded futility."

Dr. Silver branched off from the topic of the Council debate to plead for help in organizing the Jewish militia called for under the partition plan. He noted that the militia would have the responsibility of keeping law and order in the proposed Jewish state after May 15 but that it had not yet been set up and that the British refused to allow it to be set up before they relinquished the League of Nations mandate.

The Zionist asked the Council and all other members of the United Nations to appeal to Britain to allow the immediate organization of a Jewish militia. He added a plea for the lifting of arms embargoes against the proposed Jewish state.

"The organization, recognition and equipment of the Jewish militia is for us of greater urgency than the sending of a non-Palestinian armed force by the Security Council," he said. "The Jews of Palestine wish first and foremost to defend themselves, but their hands must not be tied."

Dr. Silver listed other charges of "obstruction" against the British. He recalled to the Council that the United Kingdom had refused to open a port to Jewish immigration on Feb. 1, as called for by the partition plan. He asserted that it had refused to allow the Palestine Commission to enter the Holy Land and that it had rejected the idea of a progressive transfer of areas to the Commission's administration.

"We most regretfully note that almost every way which is suggested by the responsible agency of the United Nations is effectively blocked by the mandatory power."

Dr. Silver denied the criticisms of the Jewish Agency by Arthur Creech-Jones, Britain's Colonial Secretary. He said that the British Labor party and Mr. Creech-Jones himself had frequently voiced support of the Zionist movement.

"But since coming into office they have refused to honor a single one of these promises," he said.

Taking up the question of terrorism, Dr. Silver said that it had been denounced by the Agency "time and again." The real source of terrorism in Palestine, he declared, is the "immoral iniquitous policy of the White Paper (of 1939), a self-willed and unlawful policy decreed by Great Britain."

MAGNES APPEALS TO JEWS AND ARABS

The Palestine group headed by Dr. Judah L. Magnes, president of the Hebrew University, is making an appeal to the Arab and Jewish communities to halt the bloodshed before it leads to disaster.

Posters in Hebrew and Arabic, now being distributed, say: "To all the inhabitants of the Holy Land. Ruin breeds ruin. Murder begets murder. And what is the end? Destruction of the whole country. In both the Jewish part and in the Arab part there will remain desolation. The majority of the inhabitants of the Holy Land—Jews and Arabs, Moslems and Christians—already look with their own eyes into the abyss. Let all of us take courage and let us put an end to the spilling of blood, ruin and destruction. It is not yet too late."

Dr. Magnes who has always opposed partition as the solution of the Palestine problem is still convinced that means can be found to reconcile Jews and Arabs.

JDC aid in Germany, Austria, Italy and Cyprus reaches practically all of the 250,000 Jewish refugees in the displaced persons camps.

"We have no government yet to do as other countries would so we do it as we can," he said. "Youths of military age have been asked to register. Anybody wishing to travel abroad must get an exit permit from a registration officer. Jewish travel agencies will not sell them tickets without it. Men are sent by the Haganah into cinema queues and restaurants to check on registration cards. Jewish firms will not employ anybody who does not hold one."

Among other things, this conscription policy prevented the sons of wealthy families from escaping the duties and perils of less fortunate Jews by going abroad, he declared, adding: "It is unpleasant in terms of civil liberties, but unpleasantness is inescapable in war."

The spokesman said Jews of foreign citizenship would be required to take Palestinian nationality if they remained under a Jewish state.

LEADERS OPPOSE

The nucleus of the organization is a National Council of 100 members, including a number of well-known American churchmen and educators, many of whom have lived and worked in the countries of the Middle East. One member is Rabbi Morris S. Lazaron, of Baltimore, Maryland, noted non-Zionist member of the Reform rabbinate.

Miss Gildersleeve said at a press conference that the committee has had insufficient time to adopt specific stands on a number of questions involved in the Palestine problem.

She made clear, however, that the committee shares the view of the American government, as stated before the Security Council, that the U. N. has no legal authority to use force to guarantee partition of Palestine since the partition plan was simply a recommendation of the General Assembly.

Miss Gildersleeve, Mr. Roosevelt and other committee members asserted the committee's belief that the Palestine problem must be solved through conciliation or some sort of compromise agreeable to both the Arabs and the Jews.

The committee members held that efforts to reach an amicable settlement of the Palestine problem had not been exhausted through the long years of negotiation and conflict in the Holy Land.

Miss Gildersleeve said she was unable to say what solution of the Palestine problem the committee had in mind. A number of solutions had been suggested, she said, but since there still was no stand on this by the committee, only personal views could be expressed.

JEWISH BOATS

At the same time, he said, reinforcements in men would begin to move in through the ports to join some 80,000 fully trained and 30,000 partly trained men already in the Haganah forces. In addition to those who would come from Europe, he mentioned 14,000 now waiting in Cyprus.

Meanwhile, it was announced at a Jewish Agency press conference that the registration of Jews between the ages of 26 and 35 had begun in Tel-Aviv and would soon begin in Haifa and Jerusalem. The announcement added that all officers and "noncoms" who served in the British or other armies during the war had been called up.

An earlier registration of Jews between 17 and 25, for service of all kinds, resulted in a response of better than 80 per cent, it was said.

The spokesman anticipated no difficulty in transporting arms and men to Palestine after May 15 because "we will then be a legal state."

Reflecting a feeling now common among Jews, the spokesman cast doubt on the sincerity of the British intention to leave Palestine for good. He predicted that while a gradual withdrawal toward Haifa would be made, most of the British forces would still be in Palestine on May 15 ready to respond to a possible United Nations appeal to them to restore order.

In return, he thought that the British might ask for permanent military bases in Palestine, according to the New York Times.

of all Jewish displaced persons probably will register immediately, but if the difficulties confronting their hopes for passage to the United States continue some 75 per cent are expected to seek entry into Palestine.

The I. R. O. announcement said that "ultimately, all Jewish displaced persons who apply to go to Palestine will receive Palestine visas."

The Jewish Agency for Palestine, working in agreement with the I. R. O., is conducting the registration. The purpose of listing visa applicants now, it was said, was to establish categories of emigrants and priorities of movements. The registrants receive medical examinations when they sign up.

JDC in 1947 shipped from the United States more than 200,000 religious books to Europe. This is exclusive of purchases in Palestine. JDC also helped print an additional 300,000 religious and educational books in Germany alone.

The alternatives are simple . . . and final.

Now is the long night before the day. We can let the Yishuv go through this, the most crucial and most promising period in Jewish history, alone.

We can let the young boys die in the hills for want of an ambulance or a hospital. We can let the people in the cities go hungry because there are no armored trucks to bring the food from the settlements. We can let the embattled Jewish Community try, on its own, to make room for 75,000 new immigrants. We can stand by and let the Yishuv bleed . . .

In Palestine now the Jews have a saying: "The more money that is raised, the less blood will be lost."

A simple ratio that spells the difference between life and death, between security and fear, between a state and a ghetto in Palestine.

There are no free rides in history. You have to pay for what you get. The Yishuv is paying with its blood for the right of the Jewish people to freedom, dignity and security.

We have to pay too if Jewish Palestine is to continue building the Jewish State so that it becomes a homeland to every Jew who wants to go there.

We have the choice to make.

Which shall it be? Blood or money.

We can give our answer through the . . .
